

Bark Lake wooed by two suitors

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Two groups have their sights set on acquiring Bark Lake Leadership Centre for different uses that would keep it in operation and could spare some existing employees their jobs.

Sir Sandford Fleming College is discussing a proposal to offer some of its educational programs at Bark Lake on a year-round basis, while a Belleville businessman hopes to turn the leadership centre into a non-profit wilderness experience camp for school children.

Both groups have already spoken about their preliminary plans to the Ministry of Culture, Tourism and Recreation, which operates Bark Lake, but neither has made any formal offers for the 350-acre site near Gooderham.

Two weeks ago the Ministry made the surprise announcement that it would be closing the centre's gates as of August 31 because it can no longer afford its $1.2-million annual operating budget.

The decision stunned Bark Lake employees who have been working hard to make the leadership centre a self-sufficient operation and were expecting to reach the half-way mark this year.

The province has called in its real estate arm, the Ontario Realty Corporation, to find a buyer for the property.

Other ministries are to be given the first opportunity to acquire the site. It is then to be offered to institutions, such as colleges and universities, before private sector buyers are sought.

While Sir Sandford has stated it is looking for a new location to consolidate its programming, Principal Barb Bolin says the college is not considering Bark Lake for this purpose.

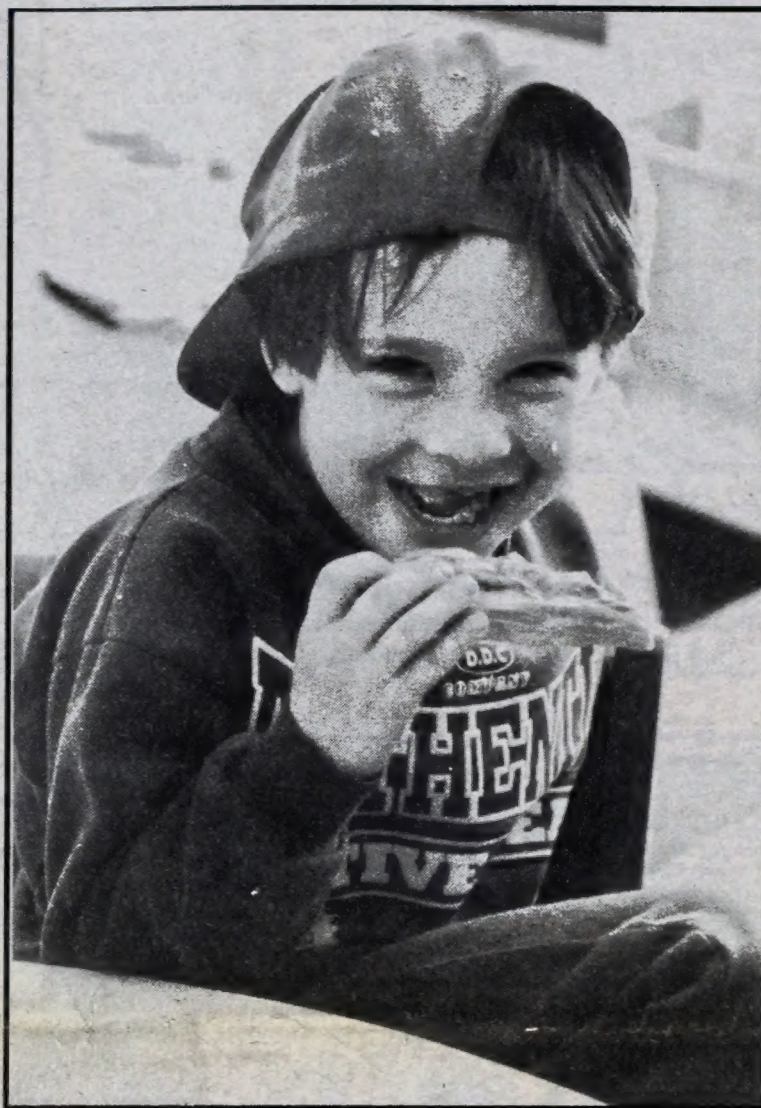

"There's no plan to move what we have now to Bark Lake," she says. "We are trying to determine if there is some kind of programming we can offer there."

Bolin and others from the college have visited Bark Lake a number of times since it was announced the leadership centre would be closed.

The college is hoping to decide very shortly whether or not it will make a concrete offer on the site, she says.

"We may decide that we just cannot do anything in these times of fiscal restraint, and with the knowledge that the federal gov-

Do you want to be on television?

It may only be a fleeting glimpse, but Highlanders have an opportunity to bask in the television spotlight this weekend.

The Sports Network will be at the Minden Wildwater Preserve this Saturday and Sunday to video the Canadian National White Water Team Trials. A crew from Pepsi will also be there to video footage for a commercial for its new product.

And who knows? As the cameras pan the rugged shoreline of one of Canada's finest kayak courses, maybe it will catch you standing on the shore, watching the kayakers toss and turn in the turbulent waters.

"It's quite a coup for the Chamber of Commerce," says Wayne Cowling, a member of the Chamber's marketing committee. This is the second time the Chamber has convinced TSN to do a half-hour show in the Highlands — the program on

Some exempt from sewer line hook-up

SIGNING ON: Property owners on the north side of Lake Kashagawigamog register their votes in favour or against a sewer line extension on their side of the lake as Dysart deputy-reeve Bill Davis looks on. Forty of the 42 property owners at the public meeting said they are for the sewage service.

Some property owners on the north side of Lake Kashagawigamog are having a hard time digesting why they will be required to hook up to a sewer line, while their neighbours will not.

The permanent and seasonal residents demanded answers from Dysart et al reeve Murray Fearrey during a sometimes heated information session Wednesday evening.

The meeting was called by Dysart council to bring property owners on Kashaga Drive and the south side of Hwy. 121 up to date on the municipality's sewer line extension proposal.

Among the first questions from the floor, a gentleman asked Fearrey to explain why it is proposed that some

The faxes are piling up as election gets into gear

How many trees will sacrifice their life for the provincial election? That's what the Echo will try to find out. We're saving all the faxes we receive from the candidates and their parties. After the June 8 election, we'll weigh and measure them and then try to figure out how many trees were needed to produce so much paper. By the way, right now the Conservatives are winning the fax wars. Their faxes outnumber the Liberals' by a ratio of about 3 to 1.

Meanwhile, local New Democrats met at the Lindsay Legion last night (Monday) to choose their candidate. The result was not known at the Echo's press time.

If there's a knock on your door this week, it may be an enumerator. From May 11 to May 17, more than 40,000 enumerators, working in pairs throughout the province, will go door to door to enumerate more than six million electors for the June 8 provincial election. To be eligible to vote, you must be 18 years old as of election day, a Canadian citizen and an Ontario resident for the six months prior to election day. No information is requested concerning an elector's marital status or occupation and there's no requirement to indicate Mr. Mrs Miss or Ms.

The Kinmount United Church Ladies will hold a hot and cold buffet supper at the Kinmount Legion Hall on Saturday, May 20, 4:30 to 7 p.m.. Prices: Adults $10, children 10 and under $4, preschoolers free.

County's homebuilders spread the word

Minden show lets people know their needs can be met locally

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

WHETHER THEY WERE LOOKING for ideas, or someone to turn their ideas into reality, people were sure to find what they wanted at the 3rd Annual Haliburton County Homebuilders Association's Home and Cottage Show.

The Minden Curling Club was filled with booths and displays of the association members. If you wanted a house, a porch, a fireplace, new windows, a new kitchen, better television reception or new plumbing, there was a business which could help.

Gary Burtch, association president, says most people were interested in renovating their homes or cottages. "They come more for ideas than deals," he says, noting that people are still cautious about spending money.

The show is not so much about sales as it is getting the word out that the businesses in Haliburton County are professional and highly skilled.

"The purpose is to show what we can do so they don't have to bring people from out of the area," says Burtch. "It's promoting the association and as a builder, it's getting my name out there."

If you missed the show, many association members will also be taking part at the Haliburton Home Show at the curling rink on June 2, 3 and 4.

ratepayers will be exempt from hooking up to the line.

Fearrey told the audience of about 60 that 75 property owners, many of them with lakefront lots, inside the proposed service area will be permitted to continue operating septic systems.

"We had to leave off certain places, such as Kashaga Lane and Henwood Lane, simply because the municipality does not own the roads," said Fearrey. "We had to back off those areas because it would be far too expensive to expropriate the necessary land for the line."

In other instances, where there are geographical complications, the municipality has judged installation of a hook-up to the main sewer line prohibitively expensive for the property owner, he said.

"So, you're asking people who are not on the lakefront to pay for people who are on the lakefront, who are the worst contributors," said the man who asked the question.

Fearrey said that while some will be exempt from hooking up to the line, they will not be exempt from doing their part to clean up the lake.

"Believe me, council is not going to give these people a free ride," he said. "Their properties will be monitored very heavily and if there is anything wrong with their septic systems they'll be required to replace them."

The cost of installing a new septic system would be much higher than hooking up to the sewer line, Fearrey said.

According to the municipality's proposal, property owners will have to pay between $3,500 and $3,800 towards the installation of the sewer line.

In addition to that fee, they will also have to pay a hook-up charge of between $1,500 and $2,000 to connect their homes and cottages to the main line.

Resorts and other businesses will be charged many more times that amount based on a formula to decide an equivalent number of residential units (ERUs).

Other members of the audience questioned why only they will be required to pay for the sewer service, and not property owners on the south side of the lake as well.

Fearrey said the municipality cannot legally charge property owners who are not on the line, because sewer services can only be provided only on a user-pay basis.

However, he did say the municipality plans to extend another sewer line along the southern shore of the lake when it has completed the line on the north shore.

Fearrey admitted the sewer line proposal has a number of problems property owners may not like, but said it is the best plan the municipality could put together.

"It's not perfect. We realize that," he said. "... You're looking at what may look to be a penalty now, but will look good to you in four or five years."

Property owners still have the opportunity to have the proposal defeated.

The municipality can only go forward with the sewer line extension if more than 50 per cent of the nearly 400 property owners in the service area agree to the plan.

"We're governed by your decision," Fearrey told the crowd. "We're not here to jam it down anyone's throat. That's not the intent of it ... It's being offered to you first because it's the cheapest solution to service the most people."

Property owners were asked to sign a form telling the municipality whether they were for the proposal, against it or would like more information from the engineer who will be in charge of the job.

Over the next two weeks council will add up the votes and hopes to come to a final decision on the line, said Fearrey.

If the majority of individual property owners vote against the plan, the municipality will still build a sewer line to service resorts and commercial properties on the north side of the lake.

Should the proposal be approved, all property owners in the service area will be required to hook up to the line, but will have until 1999 to begin making payments for the service.

The municipality will offer property owners financing over periods of 10, 15 and 20 years at an interest rate between five and 10 per cent.

The engineering firm handling hired to carry out the project expects to begin construction in the fall and have it completed by next spring.

Belleville man wants wilderness camp

ernment is going to reduce transfer payments to colleges and universities," said Bolin. "If we do go ahead with a proposal, we need to ensure that it would not have an impact in any way on our regular programs."

Peter Zuuring, who runs a computer software company in Belleville, wants to turn Bark Lake into a wilderness experience camp, much like one he attended near Thunder Bay which he says changed his perception of the north.

"What you learn first of all is that this is a magic thing where we live," he says. "You also learn how to work together as a group and share tasks. It's a bonding experience."

If students from the five or six surrounding school boards were able to go to such a camp, Zuuring believes the experience they would receive would be powerful enough to convince many of them to return to the region after university or college and contribute to the local economy.

As well, he said, the camp would create about 40 full-time positions, many of which could be filled by existing Bark Lake staffers.

Zuuring says he already has an agreement with the Ministry of Natural Resources to use a Junior Rangers camp near Bancroft, called Camp Mashiesney, to create a wilderness camp, but it is not a four-season facility.

Because many of the buildings at Bark Lake are winterized already, he feels it would cost less to turn it into a wilderness experience camp than it would to renovate Camp Mashiesney.

He estimates it would cost about $1-million to carry out the necessary work to turn Bark Lake into wilderness camp and about $2-million per year to run.

Operating costs would be covered by a charge of about $200 to $300 per student for a full week.

Zuuring said students who are unable to pay the course fee would be able to receive assistance from the non-profit company running the camp.

He foresees 200 students a week going to the camp for one-week sessions throughout the year.

Like Sir Sandford, Zuuring has spoken with the Ontario Realty Corporation about his proposal and is hoping that his non-profit company will be considered along with institutions, not as a private sector buyer.

"I can turn it into something," he said. "I have the vision and I have the drive."

STATIONARY WALK:

Wet spring weather doesn't stop Minden resident Gwen Robinson from going for her daily walk. She and husband Geoffrey will take a stroll on their treadmill instead. The two avid walkers are encouraging others to take part in a group stroll May 15 in Minden as part of National Sneakers Day, aimed at promoting a healthier and more active lifestyle. It starts at 11 a.m. at the gazebo.

A walk a day keeps the doctor at bay

Sneaker Day promotes healthy and active lifestyle

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

After four and a half decades of fighting corporate legal wars, Toronto lawyer Geoffrey Robinson walked out of his downtown Bay Street office three years ago.

And, thanks to his wife Gwen, he hasn't stopped walking since.

Up until then, the 69-year-old Robinson would spend his recreation time away from the office playing baseball, swimming, golfing and water skiing to keep in shape.

But the one physical activity that was lacking in his life, which is so often taken for granted by many, was the pleasure of walking. That all changed, though, soon after he met Gwen.

"I was sitting in front of my desk all day and so it was a nice break to get out and clear your head," says Robinson of the daily lunch-time walks Gwen would encourage him to take with her.

The two would meet each day at noon and walk. Walk to the St. Lawrence Market, walk around Centre Island, walk around to some of many historic churches in the city, anywhere and everywhere. "It just evolved," she says of their routine. "When you're living in an apartment or condominium, you don't really have an outdoor place to go to so it was a way of getting outside exercise and fresh air."

Having both now retired — she used to work at an investment business — and moved from their North York apartment to their 100-acre Minden farm, the two have continued their perambulatory pleasures.

Everyday, weather permitting, the Robinsons put on their sneakers and go for a leisurely two km stroll, sometimes down to the Blairhampton Road to Ogg Road, sometimes just around their old Henderson farmstead. And when the weather doesn't permit it outdoors, the two spend 15 to 20 minutes a day on the stationary treadmill.

Gwen, who organizes the local walking event of the provincial Seniors Games competitions, says that the healthy hobby can be a satisfying and soul-searching experience. "It gives you time to look at the nature and to take everything all in. And up here you don't have to watch out for traffic."

She does have concerns, however, about the blackflies and bullets. "I always use the treadmill during hunting season in the fall and in the spring because of the blackflies."

As part of events for the May 15 National Sneaker Day, she's encouraging people, young and old, to take part in a Minden group walk sponsored by Summer Active, a Health Canada program.

All people, but moreso those who are older, should be encouraged to put on their sneakers more often, she says.

While the ability to stay active is gradually lost with time, "walking you can always do. When you get older there are things you can't do, but this you can do at your own pace."

And, too often an activity as basic as walking is taken for granted by people, says Geoffrey. "After a while you lose the ability to walk and your muscles just go."

National Sneakers Day is the kick-off for Canada's Fitness Week, a Health Canada initiative aimed at promoting a healthy and active lifestyle.

The Minden walk will take place from 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. with the starting point at the gazebo on North Water Street. Anyone who wants more information and wants to get involved can contact Estella Burch at 286-6362.

"Making preplanning arrangements is a simple process."

"If you've ever thought about making advance funeral plans, you probably have a lot of questions. There may be some uncertainty about what these arrangements include.

Preplanning is simply making a written record of your requests. Or you have the option to prepay for services or merchandise.

The reasons people choose to preplan may vary, but most want to assure their loved ones aren't burdened financially or emotionally. It's a comfort to know things are taken care of."

MEMBER OF THE

Local families attend Maple Leafs' minor hockey festival

BY GINNY HEMING

Matthew Roberts, age 8, and Shawn Heming, age 9, won a prize draw to take part in the annual "Toronto Maple Leafs Minor Hockey Festival '95 on April 29. Their parents had entered the draw found in the Ice Times newspaper that is published by the Hockey Development Centre for Ontario. There were 1500 to 2000 entries from all Ontario and only 25 players, age 10 and under, and 25 players, age 11 to 14, were drawn.

The organizers were amazed that two winners were drawn back to back from Haliburton - what are the odds of that happening?

This prize is sponsored by the Canadian Hockey Association and The Toronto Maple Leafs to help educate parents and players about the fun of playing good quality hockey.

The prize included: a tour of the Hockey Hall of Fame with clinics for parents and players; one hour of ice time at Maple Leaf Gardens for skill development and fun; 30 minutes family skate at MLG; and a full tour of MLG.

The morning was spent at the Hockey Hall of Fame. The players toured the facilities and had a clinic on shooting and goaltending skills. The parents clinic included the following guest speakers:

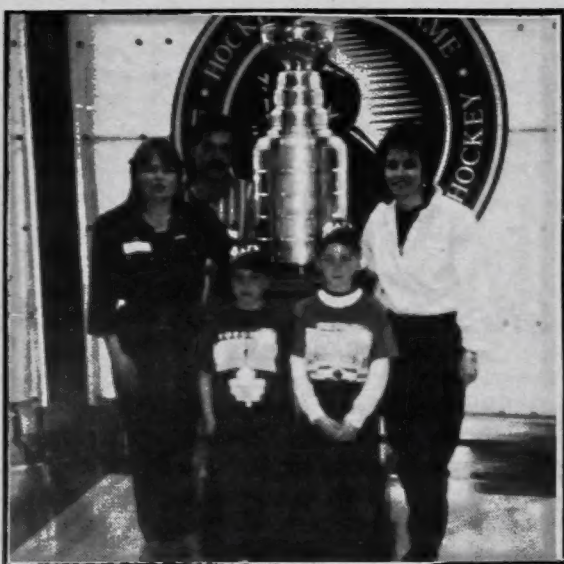

Scotty Morrison - retired NHL referee-in-chief and chairman, Hockey Hall of Fame.

Margot Page - ambassador of women's hockey and two-time gold medal winner for Team Canada at Women's Hockey World Championships.

Her Ebisuzaki - National Coaching Certification Program, coordinator.

Tony Crisp - coordinator for the Canadian Hockey Association of the Hockey Centre of Excellence.

The topics presented included the 3 E's - Entertainment, Excellence and Education, and the 3 F's - Fitness, Fun and Friendship of hockey and that all players, male and female, must have an opportunity to benefit from the special experiences of hockey. The game must be fun and enjoyable for children to continue to participate.

The afternoon was spent at Maple Leaf Gardens with the whole place to ourselves. Wow! Bill Derlego, a former Leaf player, Margot Page, Herb Ebisuzaki, and three other staff took part in on-ice sessions.

Then it was the parent's turn to join in for a family skate. There was a flourish of blades and snow with an abundance of excitement and energy. Many pictures were taken and autographs collected. After tiring us out we climbed many sets of stairs to tour the media section and Cliff Fletcher's booth (where binoculars and rock climbing equipment would help). The tour also included dressing room visits, Don Cherry's coaches corner, and interview areas for players.

Each player received a Leafs hat, a hockey jersey, a Hockey Hall of Fame puck and door prizes of hats and hockey equipment.

The players and parents seemed to have permanent smiles on their faces all day. The memories will last a lifetime. Our two families would like to publicly thank Cliff Fletcher and the Toronto Maple Leafs, and the Canadian Hockey Association for creating such a valuable experience for male and female minor hockey players.

TSN comes to Minden

the Minden Sled Dog Derby was seen by more than a million viewers across Canada - and the first time it has been able to find a major co-sponsor such as Pepsi.

But the publicity doesn't come cheap. TSN is paid to do the program and the costs are primarily being shared by the Chamber and Pepsi, which wants to use images of the kayakers to promote its new product, All-Sport. Pepsi will also feature All-Sport at the competition and throughout the program.

TSN will guarantee three prime-time viewings of the program and may show it whenever it has a space to fill. (The dog sled program was on eight times "and there's no reason that this won't be the same thing," says Cowling.)

The competition itself is also an important accomplishment for the area. On May 13 and 14, dozens of Canada's top kayakers will be converging on the Gull River to compete for a spot on Canada's national team. From this team will come the competitors in the 1996 Olympics.

"The Gull River in Minden is probably the best known race site in North America and one of the top three in the world," says a press release issued by White Water Canada. "The course is rated one of the most difficult and technical in the world due to the narrow steep pitch and the extremely fast manoeuvres required."

Some of the racers include:

- David Ford, the national men's kayak champion and the first Canadian to win a White Water World Cup

- Sheryl Boyle, the current women's kayak champion in Canada. She has received medals in the 1992 and 1993 World Cups.

- Benoit Gauthier and Francoise Letourneau, "the most exciting men's double canoe team that Canada has ever had." They're ranked 15 in the world and were national champions in 1993 and 1994.

- Larry Norman, the winner of the 1994 national team trials in men's single canoe. He was 19th at the Barcelona Olympics and has designed his own boat for competition.

The practice runs are on Friday and the competition runs all day Saturday and Sunday, starting at 10 a.m.. (Lunch is noon to 1 p.m.. The competition breaks at 3 p.m. and on Saturday at 4 p.m. there will be demonstration runs.

Who won the 1994 Minden sled dog race? What is the largest bass ever caught in Haliburton County? Where can you find the largest snowmobile club in Ontario?

Be prepared to hear answers to those questions, and others like them, soon on one of Ontario's most popular sports radio programs.

A number of Haliburton resort operators, who traditionally compete for the same tourist dollars, are considering ways to pool their advertising resources to reach a broader audience.

Among other methods of collaboration, they are thinking of buying airtime on the popular all-sports radio station The Fan, 590 AM, and its affiliate stations to run a series of commercials, along with a daily trivia contest offering prizes of holiday packages at their properties.

The resort operators have been brought together by the marketing committee of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, which came up with the idea for the radio commercials and other combined marketing efforts.

"Individually we spend a lot of money on advertising. Collectively we spend an awful lot of money," said Bryan Brown of Community Futures. "... When you put your dollars together, you can have a far greater impact. We want our advertising campaigns to reach millions, not just thousands."

And a number of recent initiatives have done just that, said Brown.

He cited Minden's last sled dog race, which was shown on TSN, reaching about 1.5 million viewers. A photograph of the event also appeared on the front page of The Toronto Star, giving the region exposure to an audience of about the same size.

The Bass 'n 'tario competition which was held for the first time ever in Haliburton last summer was shown on a number of TV stations, reaching an audience of about 3.5 million, said Brown.

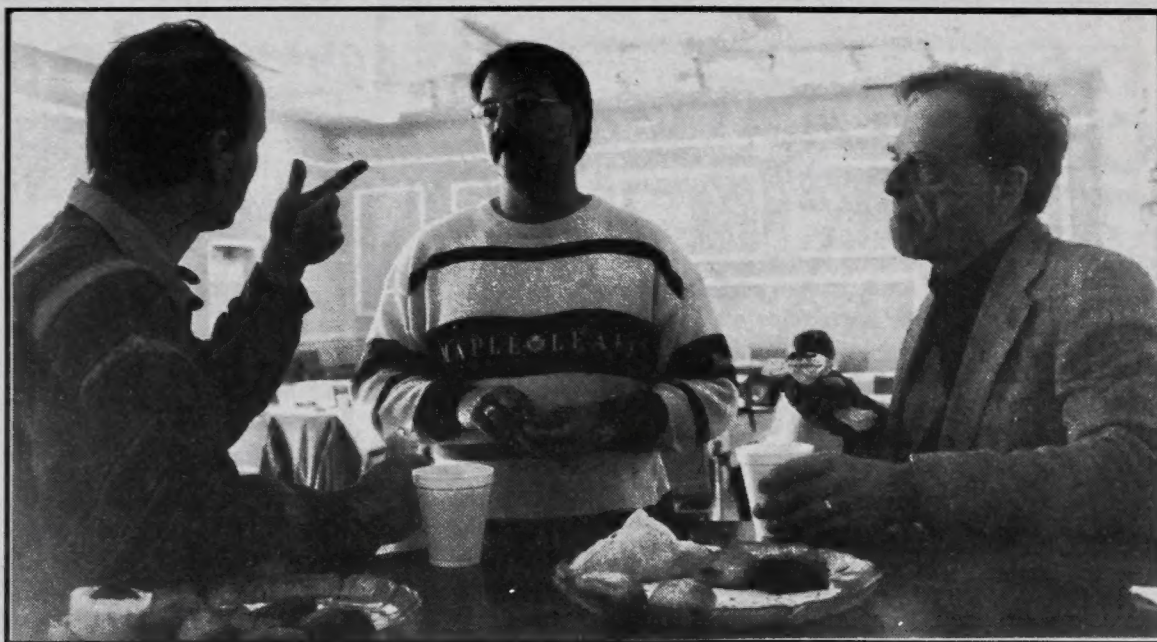

"When you put your dollars together, you can have a far greater impact. We want our advertising campaigns to reach millions, not just thousands."

Now, he said, it is time for the Chamber and the business community to come up with additional ways to draw more attention to the Highlands.

The radio commercials are one such method.

Mark Winokur, an account executive for Telemedia Broadcasting, which owns The Fan and a number of other radio stations, told resort operators he is willing to give them a bargain basement deal on air time because the station took such a beating during the hockey lock-out and the baseball strike.

"Quite frankly, this is a TALKING BUSINESS: Local resort operators are considering a plan to pool their resources and work together to reach a larger audience of potential clients. buyer's market," he said. "Eighteen months ago we probably wouldn't have been able to offer you what we are offering now."

The total price-tag of the campaign would be about $9,000 for six weeks of commercials, five days per week.

The cost to individual resort owners would depend on how many of them want to become involved, said marketing committee member Wayne Cowling.

He said he would hope between 20 and 25 resorts would take part in the campaign.

The commercials would promote the Highlands as a whole with participating resorts being mentioned on a rotating basis, said Cowling.

Each of the ads, as well as the accompanying trivia questions, would be aired on the show Prime Time Sports, hosted by Bob McCowan and Jim Hunt, which reaches an audience of nearly 250,000 listeners each week.

"We think this will work, but it will only work if we can work together," said marketing committee member Larry Tupling.

Aside from the radio ads, resort operators are also considering a marketing committee proposal to collectively host a Haliburton Highlands Open House.

The proposal would see resorts pooling their resources to take out half-page ads in the The Sun and The Toronto Star to invite visitors to test out the Highlands over the May long weekend to help them decide where to spend their summer holidays.

"The ads would promote the Highlands, not specific resorts," said marketing committee member Rick Tustin.

Participating resorts would hand out maps marking their locations, inviting guests to visit the different properties.

"It gives the consumer no obligation except to come out and see the area and try to figure out where they want to spend their money on summer vacation," said Tustin.

Cowling suggested resort operators would have to offer hooks such as dinners for two, cheaper gas at participating garages and specially priced room nights to draw more visitors.

Joachim Matyssek, who operates Sandy Lane Resort, agrees with the plan, but feels it would be too much of a rush to prepare in time for the upcoming Victoria Day weekend.

"This may be six months or a year away, but it's something we're going to tackle," said Tupling.

Bill 50 exemption would allow Minden to attract out-of-province doctors

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

MPP Chris Hodgson says the Minister of Health gave him verbal assurance that Minden will be given permission to attract out-of-province physicians.

By being allowed a "Bill 50 exemption," the village would be able to cut through a lot of the bureaucratic red tape which makes it difficult for doctors outside Ontario to set up a practice.

As well, Hodgson is working with the Community Committee for Physicians to have the area declared as "underserved." This would help attract graduating Ontario doctors.

"Before the election call, the Minister gave me her word that Minden will receive Bill 50 exemption," Hodgson says in a press release. "I intend to see that she, or whoever becomes Minister of Health after (the election on) June 8, lives up to that commitment."

In his letter to Ruth Grier, Hodgson points to the difficulties that have arisen after the departure of Dr. Anthony Holliday-Rhodes. Not only are his patients desperately searching for a replacement, but hospital services were jeopardized after there was only one doctor remaining who could work on call. A private company has been hired to supply an emergency department doctor 15 days a month.

"The availability of health care services is essential to the permanent residents of our area and they also play an important role in the promotion of Minden as a tourist destination," Hodgson says. "Knowing there is a hospital nearby gives visitors and potential new residents an added sense of security..."

"With the summer tourist season just getting under way, and one of the highest concentration of seniors in the province, we can't afford a 50% bed reduction in Haliburton County."

Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon says the past few days have been hectic as the Community Committee for Physicians pulls together the reams of information that's needed to apply for the underserved area designation. (The Bill 50 exemption application will be part of it.)

"It's determined to be a slow process," says the somewhat frustrated reeve. But she's also heartened by the amount of support the committee has received. Service clubs have volunteered time and money and the community is rallying together to make sure a solution is found.

Council has informally discussed the possibility of building some sort of medical centre, which would entice doctors to move to Minden. However, the construction of any building is premature because of the plan to move the hospital's emergency facility to the Hyland Crest site. It's possible a medical centre could be part of the emergency complex, so "investing in a permanent facility is probably not realistic at this time."

Council is open to the idea of future involvement, but provincial rules say municipalities cannot subsidize anything of a private nature. That's where the help of the service clubs will be much appreciated.

It's important that plans proceed as quickly as possible. Anthon says "there's a lot of anxiety and concern in the community." With the temporary closure of acute care beds because of the shortage of doctors, she's also worried that the province will say the community has proved it can survive without the beds. It had been planned to consolidate acute care beds in Haliburton, but only after the long-term care beds were built to relieve the pressure on beds. The sudden removal of acute care services is "like surgery without anesthetic."

There are also rumblings from Peterborough and Lindsay that they're not prepared to continue taking patients from Minden.

In seeking solutions, Chris

Hodgson also supports three of the recommendations of the Scott Report on rural hospitals:

- change the method of physician remuneration for emergency services (paying doctors an hourly wage)
- develop permanent links between rural hospitals and Academic Health Science Centres (medical schools)
- Dedicate 30% of family practitioner residency spaces to rural medicine.

The slippery slope

Health 101: Today's lesson is to discuss Pepsi as a healthy alternative to milk.

Okay, okay, it is unlikely that Pepsi would be allowed to influence curriculum, no matter how much it paid the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School to be the only soft drink sold in the cafeteria. Nonetheless, the board of education will have to tread carefully as it discusses ways of using corporate sponsorship to offset the financial burden on taxpayers.

Who can blame the board for looking at funding alternatives? After all, the board's budget is always the most contentious, the one that makes people the most angry. But at the same time, people like to view schools as a place of learning, not as a laboratory for various marketing schemes. Schools are supposed to be neutral territory, where students can concentrate solely on their lessons. People pay those heavy education taxes because they share a belief that a well-educated population is the key to this country's economic salvation. Filling students' minds with knowledge is considered more important than filling their hearts with envy as they try to live up to the artificial ideals of a consumerism.

Some trustees argue that it's naive to believe marketing doesn't already take place. Look at the peer pressure to own Nikes, regardless of $100 pricetag. There's a pecking order among the lowly t-shirt, with some having more status than others, depending on the logo. Even students' behaviour owes more to what they see on television than what is common in society. But why should we condone such pressure to conform to consumerism's values? Why must we say, "If you can't beat them, you might as well join them."

The problem with allowing sponsorship is that it opens a door and no one knows where it will lead to. At first, the decisions will seem simple, but eventually they will become more complex, with innumerable shadings of grey. Perhaps Pepsi won't ask to be part of the curriculum, but what if it asks to be advertised throughout the school? Who decides whether it's Pepsi or Coke? Is the company willing to pay the most money always the one who will win access to the students, or should it be companies which have more value?

Right now the board has a policy that's easy to live with and relatively easy to enforce. By changing that policy, it leaves itself open to conflict and having to make moral judgements. Before this happens, the board will have to think long and hard about what sort of atmosphere it wants to create in our schools, and what values it wants to impart to our students.

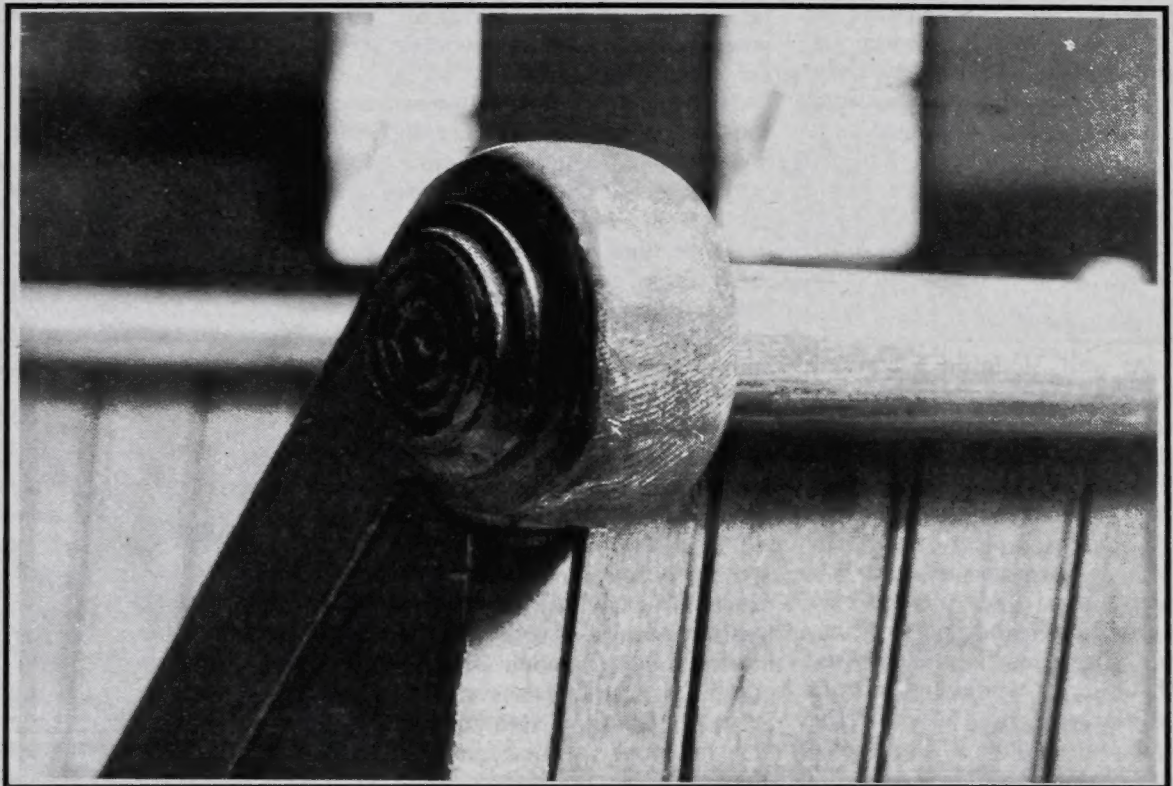

On line on Lake Kashagawigamog

Talking about money – or the lack of it –, there are many residents along the proposed route of the Lake Kashagawigamog sewer extension who will find it difficult to hook up. The will is there, but not the $5,000 it will cost to switch from septic tanks to the sewer line along the north shore.

Everyone agrees that the sewer line will cut down on pollution. The only problem is that less than one-quarter of the lake residents will pay for a service that will benefit everyone on the chain of lakes. There is talk of extending the line down the south shore of Lake Kashagawigamog, but still, that won't hit the pocketbooks of the majority of property owners in Anson, Hindon and Minden.

If the lake associations are truly committed to improving the environment, and especially the quality of the water, then couldn't the other property owners chip in to help those people who will find it a hardship to hook on? After all, everyone benefits, so why shouldn't everyone help pay for it.

Passing the buck not BoE's job

To the Editor:

The April 18th Echo report of the Board of Education budget committee meeting results, left me, (as chairman John Munro felt), upset and annoyed by the government actions, but I also feel the same about the board. They are passing the burden straight through to the taxpayers, as they state that grant losses have to be picked up by the local taxpayers, and then they go ahead and propose budget increases. It's their job to deal with the situation not just pass it on. They are responsible to the taxpayer as well as the system.

They say they can't make major cuts, but at the same time they are planning major expenses for extensive renovations to the high school. Who is to pay for this? We are not money trees. Concentration should be spent on the basics in elementary school, not installing more computers. High school years are more than ample time to computer instruction. Many children leave Grade 8 unable to spell or read properly, do any mathematics without a calculator, or even read a tape scale, yet they sure know how to play games on a computer.

Special school programs could be financed by fund-raisers, and freebies should be eliminated. Most importantly, the board could take a serious look at salaries and number of staff. This is certainly a huge expense.

As a person on fixed income I see my budget dwindling as expenses go up yearly. I have had to cut out recreational activities I looked forward to enjoying in retirement but now can't afford. All my life I have worked and paid taxes and am now asked to pay more and more each year, without a complaint. Well, I'm complaining and I'm sure I'm not alone. I've heard other areas will have no increases, and even a reduction in taxes, how come? Overall taxes should be down after the mild winter we had. Speak up people.

Sylvia Newton,
Haliburton

What's one more licence?

To the Editor:

The hullabaloo over gun licensing is enough to render temperate viewers speechless. This may excuse this writer from getting into the fray at so late a date.

We live in an increasingly complex world where we are surrounded by forms as simple as birth certificates and marriage licences, and as complex as income tax forms. So just why one more should lead to an explosion of rage is a mystery.

It is also a more violent world where your own loved ones might be on the receiving end of a lethal bullet which happily leaves its fingerprint for the police as a clue to tracking down the killer. Would you deny the police this lead to bring the murderer to justice? Think about this! Would you be equally eager to see car licences abandoned to add to the problem of tracing the guy who smashed into your car and ran?

Law-abiding hunters registering their firearms have nothing to fear. In former years as a county resident I had three shooting irons hung on my wall. After the war I disposed of them as I had no more need to put meat on the table and in the good times that followed much preferred the sight of a live deer jumping a fence to a dead one hanging from a tree branch, or lying to rot in the woods after being crippled by a misplaced shot.

It's indeed a frustrating world we have created for ourselves, but need we make it more so by permitting our blood pressure to rise to boiling point over a sensible step on the part of the government to curtail crime? You and I have helped to create the environment we live in and as it grows in complexity, as it surely will, there will have to be more rules. Shouting will not stop change.

Old rules of parenting out the window in '90s

PERSPECTIVES

Lon Duncombe

Teenagers can be scary people. My wife and I are riding herd over two of them now, and we find their mood swings and occasional tendency to head off in all directions at once to be somewhat disconcerting. In transition from the relative tranquillity of childhood, they seem to be rapidly evolving into complicated, mysterious versions of, well, ourselves. From our inexperienced perspective they appear to be entering a frequently turbulent, sporadically dangerous, always interesting, stage in their crossing to adulthood.

At times it is natural to want our teenagers to be children again, back in the safe secure world of our control. However, as Mr. Tom Wolfe once said, you can never go home again. Teenagers are not just oversized children and trying to force them back into the restrictive mold of childhood would be a frustrating, dangerous and ultimately futile exercise. Most of the old techniques are no longer effective. Many of the old rules no longer apply. A successful coping strategy requires a whole new set of skills and attitudes. Eternal values have to be reinterpreted and expressed in different ways in order to deal with the new realities of teenagerhood.

We struggle to inject our family standards of acceptable behavior and moral responsibility into new patterns of relationships as our kids stay out later, make strange new friends, date (gulp), and eventually borrow the car for an evening. In the not-too-distant future they will leave home for good, marry, (or so we hope) and have children of their own. Through it all, with the help of grandparents, teachers, friends and community, we will have tried to protect, warn and guide them. When they reach the far shore of mature adulthood, as most of them do, we will probably wish we could do it all over again.

Perhaps our children can give us insights into the turbulent age we live in. Linear thinking has now become dangerously misleading. In retrospect we realize how all of the predictions of even one generation ago - 20 hour work weeks, missions to Mars, full employment - are laughably incorrect. Ten short years ago few could have foreseen, or even guessed at, the imminent collapse of one of the mightiest empires the world has ever seen. As Canadians we are also buffeted by global forces, only recognized in hindsight, which are far beyond our control. How can our government's fiscal policy take into account the fall of the Mexican peso, or earthquakes in Japan? Who could have predicted our recent nastiness with Spain? Oil spills in Siberia and holes in the ozone layer threaten us all. The 'end of history' and 'new world order' have proven to be ideological absurdities as we are all swept into the vortex of the unknown future.

Perhaps we are all beginning to recognize the need of a new paradigm which will enable us to understand and manage the global changes that currently fill us with such disquiet. Do our institutions still serve our best interests? Can time-honoured traditions effectively guide us today? One thing is certain: There is no going back to the safer, more comprehensible world of the past. Giving our ferryboat a new coat of paint does little to improve its seaworthiness, or prepare it for the storms that must lie ahead, as we search for the strength, patience, and above all vision, to reach the far, bright shore.

This week's Pic of the Past shows the rather sombre faces of four siblings from Kinmount. Bill, Ronald, Eliza and Millie Walker were children of the village's blacksmith. Eliza, who is now Eliza Beatty and a resident of Extendicare, recently turned 90, so the picture is circa 1910. Our thanks to Mrs. Beatty for sharing the photo with us.

What would CSIS say about this?

ANNECDOTES

Anne Creelman

THE OTHER DAY I overheard someone talking about their new office. They were thrilled because although it wasn't very big and didn't have a view of anything, it was very private. I found myself daydreaming I was that person for the rest of that day. You see, as much as I love being a parent, there is a distinct lack of privacy that goes with the job. I think it is especially evident now that I have three kids at three different ages. At least one, and more often than not all three, make their presence known throughout the day and it can be a bit mind-boggling at times.

I think when we become parents we might as well get reconciled with the fact that for the first few years, we will seldom get to finish a sentence or even a thought without being interrupted. For some reason, kids just seem to know when you are about to share some piece of news with your spouse and they choose that precise moment to come running in and ask for juice, or skin their knee, or have some other crisis. It seldom fails that after you see to one child, the next comes along and after that, the last and then the whole cycle begins again. Hold that thought, dear!

Oh and then there is the phone situation. Why is it that when a parent picks up the phone, it is a signal to children that they should go immediately to that parent and inquire about the meaning of life, or decide to make a rocket ship out of aluminum pans or of course, go to the bathroom. It just never fails. I have one friend who is starting to despair. Everytime she calls me or I call her, her kids are sure to come running. She says it happens with other people too but for some reason I really seem to bring them out. It doesn't bother me but I know how she feels. Everytime I'm in the middle of an important call, I invariably get called to the bathroom to help someone out. I can just see the person on the other end rolling their eyes.

Oh yes - the bathroom. Time was when a person was assured of privacy when they went to have a shower or whatever, but no more. My children can come running from other people's houses if they think I am actually going into the bathroom. The door flies open like Buffalo Bill entering a saloon and whatever I am doing has no bearing on the situation of the moment. The children are completely non-plussed by the fact that I may be indisposed. Their attitude is such that "if you help me out now, Mom, I'll be out of your way in a second. Otherwise, I'll stand here and wait until you can help me." I know, I could lock the door but I never thought I'd have to in my own house. I'll never forget the time my sister was visiting when Max was a cherub-like two year old. As she finished showering and drew back the curtain, she was startled to find she had a rather short valet holding the towel for her. She has since then become accustomed to a veritable parade of toddlers creeping up on her at any given time.

Although all of this togetherness can be exasperating at times, I know it is just phase and will be out of my life before I am ready for it to be gone. After a particularly wild day, I found myself thinking of some Saturday night when my husband and I had a quiet evening to ourselves and the children were all out doing their own thing. Yes, let's not rush this. At least now I know where everyone is!

Act of kindness reminds reader of rural spirit

To the Editor:

Many times we are reminded, how nice it is to live in a rural community, and how well we are treated by the people that live there and have businesses there.

On Thursday, April 27, I had to have a small, "recall", repair done on my van, at Curry Motors.

I also had to get over to the Haliburton Hospital to see the doctor re: a medical problem.

So I asked the served rep. if it would be possible to have someone drive me over in my van, and I would walk back.

If you remember last Thursday, it was drizzling all day long, and I was not looking forward to the walk back. But without me asking, the service rep. said, it's a nice day out there, so we will bring your van back to the hospital and leave it for you when it is finished.

How is that for thoughtful people in our area! I didn't even know the service rep.'s name so I phoned back later and found out it was Mike Iles.

So thanks to the men who drove the van for me - thank you Mike and also thanks to Curry Motors for creating this type of atmosphere that encourages people to be so thoughtful.

Respect must be mutually earned not legislated

To the Editor:

In the past a small number of people have displayed the need and desire to mislabel, censor, dominate and control my actions and writings, as well as the actions of others who share the same concerns, all in the name of representing the suffering and the abused, sidetracking the issues.

Zoe Chilco's statement (letters, May 2), "If it were not for the men and women involved in the radical movement I would not be permitted to speak," is certainly correct.

But I ask: What good is that right if I am being censored by the same people or group who obtained this right for me?

What progress has really been made if I cannot exercise this right without attack?

Some people try to silence and attack me just as men would have in the 1920's, therefore being no different than the men whose past actions are despised.

Should I refrain from exercising my hard earned feminine right of free speech from now on? Should I be overwhelmingly indebted to the movement of the past by giving us my rights?

Somewhere between feminism and politicism we have lost empathy for all humankind. People have become numbers and statistics, not names and faces and emotions, people who hurt.

Whether a hundred women and only fifty men are suffering to me they "all" count and if that rejects feminist ideology, so be it.

You cannot force men or women with legislation and browbeating to respect each other. Respect is mutually earned. Men will not support us or open their minds and hearts if they are beaten into the ground with statistical labels and accusations.

Just because I put forth valid concerns and questions, does not mean I do not support Ms. Chilco's purpose.

I've suggested to those in power to provide services for the entire family, deal with a situation, before it escalates into violence, save lives and families. I can't see anything wrong with that.

I have not desire to personally attack or undermine others' concerns and respect their right to their opinion. That is what "real" empowerment means. We could agree to disagree and communicate, create a dialogue without anger or hysterics.

SIRCH's own figures for 1994 state that 24 women left the entire county to enter a women's shelter and that 19 charges of domestic assault were laid. Let us do something so that figure does not become larger. Even though I have no idea which men's equal rights group Ms. Chilco referred the statement, "men's group creation only divides the sexes" supports what I have said all along.

Does this mean the creation of women's groups has done the same or are they any different or more perfect? Do they have the monopoly on how to go about it correctly without creating division?

Perhaps a human rights angle might provide a better and more efficient perspective to eliminate violence.

New format makes for an easier read

To the Editor:

As a fairly regular visitor to the Haliburton Highlands, I enjoy picking up a copy of the Echo to catch up on things.

The April 11, 1995 edition caught my attention because of its smaller, tabloid-style format.

It looks great! The paper is easier to handle - not as cumbersome - and, as usual, the layout is thoughtful and well organized.

Keep up the good work and the new format!

A Mother's Love
A mother's love is ours to keep.
What a priceless thing to know,
Her thoughts stay with us through the year.
No matter where we go.
And I think that nothing in this world,
Will ever rise above,
That single most important thing of all
A Mother's Love.

QUALIFIED VOTERS

Be Sure of Your Vote

JUNE 8th, 1995

You can help make sure YOUR NAME is on the NEW LIST of VOTERS for the Ontario Provincial Election.

If you are eligible and wish to vote, it's up to you to make sure your name is on the NEW LIST of VOTERS. You must answer (or provide the information for someone else to answer) the questions the Enumerators will be asking. This will make sure your name does appear on the NEW LIST of VOTERS so that you can vote.

CAN YOU VOTE ON JUNE 8th?

These are the questions the Enumerators will ask:

- (1) On Election Day will you be 18 years of age or over?
- (2) On Election Day will you be a Canadian Citizen?
- (3) On Election Day will you have resided in Ontario for the preceding 6 months?
- (4) On Election Day will you be a resident at this address?

They should also ask if there are other eligible voters resident at your address.

The phone numbers for Electoral District Returning Offices are available from Directory Assistance. If you require information specific to your Electoral District, ask for "Elections Ontario" and then the Electoral District by name.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT ENUMERATION

The two Enumerators who will soon be calling at your door should produce their appointment form and identify themselves and the purpose of their visit.

If you are at home, or if someone else can answer their questions, the Enumerators will complete a Form 301 for you and for any other qualified members of the household. The names of all eligible voters should then appear on the NEW LIST of VOTERS.

If they miss you on their first visit, they will be making other visits or "call backs". Please give them access in order to help make sure the NEW LIST of VOTERS is as complete as possible.

PERSONAL ACCIDENT COMPENSATION PLAN
DESIGNED FOR INDEPENDENT BUSINESS OWNERS AND MANAGERS

As you are aware, for many years self-employed individuals like yourself have had extreme difficulty purchasing a compensation plan at a reasonable cost.

Now Commercial Union has developed a special plan for the self-employed. The unique features of this plan are:

- Coverage 24 hours a day - not just at work.
- Benefits begin from the very first day.
- Disability benefits are available up to $2,000. a month.
- Accident hospitalization benefit of $100 a day [$3,000. a month]
- Partial disability benefits - 50% paid for up to two months.
- Rehabilitation benefit - up to 3 times the monthly benefit amount.
- Increasing accidental death benefit.
- Sickness disability rider available.
- No medical required.
- Designed to pay in addition to any other plan you may have.
- Affordable premiums.
- Individual or family coverage available.

A GREAT ALTERNATIVE TO WORKERS
COMPENSATION

Protect yourself and provide financial independence for you and your family before an accident strikes.

Hardwood lumber inspectors graduate

A new crop of hardwood lumber inspectors has graduated from Sir Sandford Fleming College.

The college is the only institution in Canada, and one of two in North America, that offers a hardwood lumber inspection course.

And what's better news is that the students are graduating at just the right time, said Dermot Calver of D & S Calver Lumber.

Calver, who originally helped Sir Sandford establish its program, was on hand Friday to speak at the graduation ceremony for the hardwood lumber inspectors at Wigamog Inn.

"Right now there is an acute shortage of hardwood lumber inspectors," he said.

The previously slumping lumber industry has sprung back to life.

Graduates of Sir Sandford's highly specialized course can expect to go on to positions sorting lumber into different grades for a variety of uses, such as furniture and flooring.

Many hardwood inspectors eventually move into sales or management, said Calver.

The college offered the course until about 1990 when the lumber industry began to decline. Now that it has recovered, the college has reinstated the 16-week program. Next year it plans to run the course again.

Tory Hill war vet killed in crash

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

A Tory Hill war vet was killed Friday when he lost control of his car and crashed into a rock cut on Hwy 121.

Randolph Scott, 71, was travelling westbound alone in his 1988 Chevrolet Celebrity at 2:45 p.m. about two kilometres east of Tory Hill when his car crossed the lane, veered off the road and hit a rock cut.

Monmouth firefighters, Minden OPP and ambulance service attended the scene. Mr. Scott was rushed to Haliburton Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Mr. Scott was the husband of Ethel Scott, President of the Wilberforce Royal Canadian Legion. The family, which includes two daughters, Karen and Carolyn, and one son Randy, "is pretty shook up," said in-law and family friend Norma Walsh.

He was a WW II gunner with the 4th Light Anti-Artillery unit.

The Scotts moved to their Lee's Road home off Hwy 503 six years ago after Mr. Scott retired from General Motors. They stayed at a cottage near Kinmount before making the move.

Case adjourned until June 7

Police News

Court proceedings have been adjourned for the second time in the case of a Haliburton Highlands Secondary School teacher who has been charged with sexual exploitation. He is scheduled to appear in provincial court in Minden on June 7.

The accused appeared in court on Wednesday after an earlier adjournment from an April 19 appearance.

STOLEN CAR

Apsley OPP are investigating the recovery of a 1988 Pontiac Grand Prix, black in colour, stolen from the Village of Haliburton about 1:00 p.m., May 1. The stolen car was spotted by police during the early afternoon and it was immediately abandoned in the area of Trotter's Road off Highway 28, north of Apsley. The suspect, an 18-year-old Cardiff man, fled into the bush. Police combed the area with no luck. However, further investigation led to the arrest of the youth, who has been charged with possession of stolen property, driving while prohibited and breach of probation.

OFFICE MOVED

Minden OPP are reminding people that the Haliburton Maple Street community sub-office has moved to the old ambulance base.

Safety audit finds 200 workplace hazards

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at Wednesday's Glamorgan council meeting.

Safety hazards

An independent audit of the township's work stations has found more than 200 safety hazards.

The report, carried out by Glamorgan resident and safety consultant Gregg Rummelgas, pinpoints unsafe work conditions such as improper storage of hazardous materials, a lack of proper fire protection procedures in place and obstructions of emergency exits.

Rummelgas inspected the township garage, office, community centre, fire hall and landfill. Many of the unsafe conditions were duplications as similar conditions were found in various areas.

One of the main concerns before the study was conducted was the air quality of the garage, which has no ventilation system. The study found that air quality didn't appear to pose a threat, but that further investigation should be made.

The study pointed out 65 hazards at the municipal garage, 52 at the firehall, 30 at the community centre — among them a suggestion to test the water quality — and 26 at the township office.

Council has begun to address the safety deficiencies.

Drop-in debate

The recreation committee's goal of creating a youth drop-in centre sparked a heated and at times confrontational debate among council members.

Committee Chair Tom Vos put forth a request that last year's recreation portion of the municipality's surplus money, $3,400, be put into the committee's reserve fund. The recreation reserve would then total just over $7,000, which could be used to establish a youth drop-in centre.

Both Deputy-Reeve Bill Challis and Councillor Chuck Viner, however, said they were opposed to the idea until a "needs" study is completed first.

"I've got four children and I'm totally in agreement with a drop-in centre but I just think we are going ahead with it backwards. We have to identify the need first and then put forth a plan," argued Viner. "I think you're trying to shove it down our necks. I'm saying let's prove that it's needed first," he added.

Challis said the committee's reserves took two years of hard work to build up and questioned whether it should all be used in one specific project.

But a committee should have some power to determine the fate of its finances and allowed to come up with its own goals and plans, said Reeve Elva Bates, adding that she too supported the drop-in.

An initial motion to redirect the money into the committee's reserves and earmark it for the centre was voted down. Vos himself voted against his initial bid, while Councillor Jean Heathcote was the lone supporter.

A second motion to simply move last year's recreation surplus into the committee's reserve fund was carried unanimously.

"I don't think there's any question this is an excellent idea, but there's a right way to do it and a wrong way," said Viner.

Challis as well said he too would be behind the drop-in, once the need has been proved.

Packing 'em in Development on Salerno Lake is four times

what it should be, says planning consultant Al McNair.

At the last meeting, council deferred two lot creation applications on the lake on the basis of an informal study showing the lake is overpopulated.

McNair has told council that it is overbuilt by a 4 to 1 ratio. The original recommended population for the lakefront was 80, said Clerk Treasurer Mike Rutter. However, the present population has soared to close to 270 in recent years.

Council plans to set up a public meeting to get input on whether or not the two applications should be approved.

Meanwhile, applications by two property owners to sell right of way access to one of the lot creation applicants, Birch Narrows Wood Products, was granted by council.

"Even if we aren't going to grant them the severances, these people should still have access to their property," said Bates.

Access points

The municipality will grade and gravel some lake access points which have been deteriorating since the Ministry of Natural Resources abandoned them, but it's not about to get into the habit of assuming full responsibility for the access roads.

Council plans to enter into an agreement with the MNR — which relieved itself from access point responsibility a few years ago — but only as a tidying-up measure.

The main points needing repair and maintenance are Koshlong, Stormy, Pine, Horseshoe and Wolf Lakes.

Challis raised concerns that if the municipality agrees to do work on one lake, "we're leaving ourselves open to do roadwork on other lakes."

But cottagers aren't getting council's sympathy for complaints about the public using the points.

"They seem to forget that they (cottagers) had to agree to give access to the public when they got those roads," noted Bates.

An "odd" request

A North Bay businessman is interested in purchasing a 1,000 acre parcel of wilderness land for a project which he says will pay off financially for the community.

A letter to council from Keith Cunningham asks whether there are any properties of such a size being sold by the province or the municipality for unpaid back taxes.

The type of land he's after is isolated and "would have none of the features that usually make land desirable to cottagers or developers," he wrote.

While Glamorgan has "tons and tons of crown land in the municipality" — roughly 10,000 acres — Clerk-Treasurer Mike Rutter called it an "odd" request.

No more freebies

Residents keeping close tabs on the decisions of council will soon have to pay for it.

Because a growing number of people are requesting copies of the minutes of meetings be mailed to them, council has decided to make use of municipal guidelines which call for a charge of 25 cents per page for any document copies.

Tam dam rescheduled

The upcoming meeting with residents of Tamarack Lake to discuss reach a consensus on the desired water level the dam should be set at has been rescheduled due to council members' inability to attend.

The original date of May 27 has been changed to June 17.

Corporate sponsors may be called in to reduce education tax burden

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Haliburton school board trustees may allow corporate sponsors into the presently protected domain of the county's schools.

Trustees are hoping outside sources of revenue will compensate the board for shrinking government grants, enabling them to continue programs without placing a larger burden on local taxpayers.

"I think we have to do it," school board chairman John Munro told members of the board's education committee. "I think (the advertising) has been all around us, but we just haven't been getting paid for it."

The committee is recommending that the board's fundraising policy, which does not permit corporations to advertise their logos or products on school board property, be rewritten to open up schools to private sector sponsorship.

However, director of education Brad Saunders cautioned trustees to be careful not to compromise the integrity of the school system in their quest for funding.

"I feel it would be naive to think of (sponsorship) as a one-way scenario," he said. "In some cases corporations may want to start directing curriculum ... I believe our fund-raising policy should be reviewed, but we have to look at it very closely to make sure that the school board maintains control over education."

As the province has reduced its education transfer payments, more and more school boards have been making up for the shortfall in their budgets through corporate sponsorship and other fund-raising activities, such as lotteries and bingo operations, explained superintendent of education Dale Robinson.

"There are all kinds of possibilities out there where we can raise revenue," he said.

He cited the case of Milk Marketing Board which pays the Wellington County Board of Education to place outside billboards on all of its school buses.

The board could target large corporations such as car manufacturers and computer companies, said Robinson.

Local companies should also be given a chance at sponsorship, trustees said.

There are other, simpler initiatives that can also help school's generate revenue, noted Haliburton Highlands Secondary School principal Gary Brohman.

I.E. Weldon in Lindsay raises $12,000 a year from two Pepsi machines, he told members of the education committee.

"With money so tight, I really, really feel that we have to open up our policies on fund-raising," he said. "All the money that we could raise would go towards programs, programs, programs."

Brohman said the board waived its rules against sponsorship once in the past with successful results.

The school's hockey program has been funded by three local sponsors since its inception in 1986. Admission fees are also used to keep the hockey team on the ice.

"It just goes to show that sponsorship can work, and it shows the creativity of the board in power at the time," said Brohman.

Superintendent of business administration Jim Bradley has said the board will likely seek corporate sponsorship to help put together the state-of-the-art science wing it is planning to build at HHSS as part of its recently approved renovation and expansion project.

Lake at Frost Centre is declared a provincial conservation area

PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

The Ministry of Natural Resources plans to protect a large parcel of Crown land in Sherborne and Stanhope from future development by turning it into a conservation reserve.

A 3,900-acre site surrounding Clear Lake has been recognized as a special natural heritage area because it contains a "relatively rare" form of lake, as well as stands of centuries old eastern hemlock trees, said Barb Boland, a district planner at the MNR's Minden office.

Unlike most lakes, a few of the lakes in the proposed conservation reserve have no turn-over of water during the spring or fall, Boland said.

"Over the years the sediments are allowed to build up on the bottom of the lake," she explained. "We can take samples of the sediments and get a glimpse at what conditions in the area would have been like hundreds of years ago."

Primarily, the sediment samples can be used to determine past weather and climatic conditions, said Mike Turner of the Leslie M. Frost Centre. (Clear Lake is part of the Frost Centre, although it's maintained by the Minden MNR.)

Also holding clues to the past are a number of very well preserved eastern hemlock stands.

Turner, who has conducted age tests on the trees by removing bore samples, says many of them are about 200 years old and some are even older than that.

"The oldest hemlock we were able to find is one that is 379 years old."

Described by Boland as a "dark, mossy tall-growth tree," the coniferous hemlock tree itself is not rare, but it is rare to find such well-preserved stands as can be seen in the Clear Lake area.

"There are portions of the area that have been logged and others that haven't been," Boland said. "The hemlocks appear not to have been logged from what we can see."

Aside from the hemlock stands, the land proposed to be included in the conservation reserve also has a diverse selection of old-growth, hardwood tree types, including beech, red pine and white pine.

Private parcels of land on adjacent shorelines, such as Big Hawk and Little Hawk Lakes, will not be included in the conservation reserve.

The only way to reach the Clear Lake area is by foot, canoe or by snowmobile in the winter.

If the MNR's proposal to redesignate the area is approved, people will continue to be able to hunt, fish, camp, canoe, cross-country ski, snowmobile and snowshoe there, said Boland.

The designation would protect the site from mining, logging, hydro-electric development and other industrial uses.

Boland said the MNR will hold a meeting in the future to allow the public to comment on its proposal.

Over the past year and a half, the province has identified 55 sites that it wants to protect from development through its "Keep it Wild" campaign.

Last month, 30 sites that were proposed for designation as conservation reserves in 1994 received approval.

Sherborne seeks end to crown land freeze

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Sherborne et al is launching a campaign to convince the province to release shoreline property on four crown lakes.

But one of the four bodies of water, Clear Lake, has been targeted as a proposed conservation area by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Now that Sherborne et al's official plan is drafted and awaiting public approval, the only thing missing is the land to develop on.

With roughly 96 per cent of the townships provincially-owned property, the time has come for the Ontario government to ease up its grip on crown lands in the municipality, says Haliburton County Warden and Sherborne Reeve Ross Rabjohn.

Rabjohn, with the backing of the Dorset Ratepayers Association, plans to request the present or future provincial government lift a 20-year freeze on the sale of crown land.

The other three crown lands specifically being looked at for release by Sherborne are presently free of shoreline development: Herb (Stoney) Lake and Deer Lake in Sherborne and Crown Lake in Livingstone.

In the late 1960s, the province surveyed the lakes creating potential cottage lots. The surveyed lots were "shelved", however, as a provincial policy to freeze the sale of crown lands was soon after adopted.

Now more than 30 years later, it's time to open up those lots up to development, Rabjohn says.

The policy was intended to protect environmentally sensitive areas for future generations. It prevents the sale of crown owned land for cottage development in areas south of the French and Matawa Rivers.

Releasing the crown land, Rabjohn says, is a partial solution to both the province's and the municipality's fiscal woes: Ontario needs the revenue which would be brought in by selling off portions of land and the Sherborne needs the expanded tax base which new development would bring in.

"I think everyone is convinced we can't raise taxes; yet we are getting more and more demand for services

Harcourt recycling plant fined $24,000

Candrum owners found guilty of operating business without proper licences

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Two men who briefly ran a drum recycling plant in Harcourt two years ago have been fined a total of $24,000 for operating the business illegally.

Rick and Randy Barber appeared in Provincial Court in Minden on Tuesday and were found guilty on a number of charges laid against them both individually and against their company, Candrum Inc., according to the Ministry of the

The men set up the illegal drum recycling plant at the site of the former Martin's Mill in Harcourt in May 1993 and operated it until mid-September of the same year, said MoE investigation and enforcement officer Wayne Moore.

In a July 1993 interview with The Echo Rick Barber did not appear to be too concerned that his company was breaking the law.

"Tell anybody you want that we are operating," he said. "Maybe it will help push the paperwork through."

The MoE began investigating the drum recycling operation that same summer, but did not lay charges until November 1994, said Moore.

The business partners were each charged by the Ministry for operating the plant without a licence.

In addition, they were charged for not having the proper registration to generate the waste which resulted from the cleaning process they used to wash out the 45-gallon drums, said

Moore.

While a number of residents neighbouring the site feared chemicals from the drums may leak into nearby waterways, no pollution was found by MoE investigators.

Rick Barber did at one time hold a licence to operate a drum recycling plant, also under the Candrum name, in the Holland Landing area, said Moore.

The company is listed in the 1994-1995 phone book with a Newmarket address, but its toll-free number and another number are both out of service.

"(Rick Barber's) company was one of the first in the province to be licensed, but you can't transfer licences from one area to another. They're site specific," said Moore.

The partners and their company were found guilty on all charges by Justice of the Peace Dean Elliot.

Each of the men is required to pay a fine of $2,000 and the company has been fined $20,000.

Sale of crown lands would open up area and at the same time the government is cutting back funding to us," says Rabjohn adding that 1996 will be a "crunch" year financially as the effects of this year's federal government budget trickles down to their level.

The lakes are "prime candidates" for growth. "We would want to ensure we don't overload any of the lakes but surely we could scatter a few cottages around" without putting the environment at risk.

The MNR, though, announced last week that it wants to designate one of the lakes, Clear Lake, as a protected ecosystem as part of its 'Keep It Wild' program to protect specific natural habitats and wildlife in Ontario.

Rabjohn had no knowledge of the Clear Lake MNR proposal until notified by the Echo last week. "If that is unique area environmentally and the province wants to preserve it I support that. All we're saying is let's look at it and if there is an environmental concern well that is number one."

Sherborne's request, meanwhile, is being sent to the present provincial government as well as candidates in the upcoming election. The initiative was spearheaded by the Dorset Ratepayers Association, which has a membership of about 100 residents.

Many residents asked about the possibility of having crown lands released for development during public meetings to discuss the official plan.

"We certainly don't have to worry about overpopulation," said ratepayers association President Jim Jones. "Even if we only develop one or two lakes that will only amount to one or two per cent of the municipality."

The infrastructure for development around the four lakes is already in place, says Jones. Hydro and telephone lines, road access and drainage systems exist making them suitable areas for growth.

Jones said the association is only interested in limited development which would not harm any of the natural surroundings. "The last thing we want to see is Coney Island going up."

Properly controlled development, he says, would boost the local building trade and other businesses in the community as well as municipal revenues.

While Rabjohn said the proposal is being made as reeve on behalf of his municipalities, other municipalities in the county which may have similar interests have been asked to support it.

The townships of Hindon (93 per cent), Anson (70 per cent) and Glamorgan (about 35 per cent) have the highest portions of crown land in the county next to Sherborne et al.

While supporting Sherborne's attempt to have lands released in the its own municipality, Glamorgan council isn't willing to join in a similar request.

At Wednesday's meeting, council passed a resolution supporting Sherborne's proposal, with the lone objector being Deputy-Reeve Bill Challis.

Challis argued that the existing policy freezing crown land is aimed at protecting areas for future generations and "is sound thinking. I don't think we should be selling off these lands."

Reeve Elva Bates said that while she would support development on Glamorgan crown land which surrounds roads or highways, "our lakes are developed enough in our municipality."

Stephen DeVos, Minden Ministry of Natural Resources area technician, said that even if the province opened up the surveyed lakefront property in Sherborne, "the lots created would probably not meet today's standards. They would probably have to be resurveyed and started from scratch."

Costly environmental assessments would have to be conducted.

MNR Critic and Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson says he supports the proposal.

"I think it would be a win-win situation for everyone. It would make sense for the county and would stimulate jobs in our area. It would have a tremendous spinoff," says Hodgson.

But before any crown property was let go, an "open process" of consultation with the public would need to be created first, he adds.

Artist's methods create delicate images

ART AND ME

Marion J. Hare

Looking at paintings of similar genre that convey very different moods can be instructive as well as enjoyable. Ed Araquel's exhibition, currently at The Rails' End Gallery in Haliburton, offers just such a selection.

I have chosen two landscapes that illustrate this point, will analyze and suggest that you visit the gallery and through comparison see how Araquel creates contrasting moods.

The two are "Barn in Lindsay", and "Northern Waterfall." The first a winter scene is filled with the stillness of winter, stationary in time. The second a summer scene seems filled with movement catching but a moment in time.

The painter's handling of these landscapes cause them to linger in the mind. Through his choice and placement of images and use of colour, he evokes very different moods.

In both works he followed the principal rules of composition, proven over centuries. To evoke stillness, the main object should be placed in the centre of the frame and the dominant lines should be horizontal. The colours should tend to blend, be delicate, even pastel. On the other hand to create a sense of movement, a moment in time, the images form strong diagonals from one upper corner of the canvas to the opposite lower corner. Colour contrasts can be more strident and brighter shades predominate.

Strict adherence to these rules is unlikely, however, to make for memorable landscapes. To a great extent it is the artist's ability to subtly vary these laws of composition that provides the artistry. In both of these paintings Araquel has fine-tuned variations so that a lingering mood as well as an interesting scene is created.

His barn in "Barn in Lindsay" sits squarely on a stretch of flat land. The barn dominates the scene but it is not quite centred in the frame. The line of the roof as well as the flat horizon conveys stillness but grey and brown leafless bushes prevent monotony. The base of the barn that should create another dominant horizontal is partially hidden by a snow covered haystack, thus again breaking up the domination of horizontality. Then the viewer's eye focuses on the foreground where a wire fence delicately meanders horizontally across the canvas. The central section of the fence is missing, suggesting a point of entry. But again Araquel subtly bends the rule of centrality by slightly offsetting this opening. Astutely placed leafless bushes add interest.

Of course colour choices can enhance or detract from the mood.

The stillness is conveyed by the expanse of white snow that fills much of the composition but snow marbled with shades of blue suggesting drifts and hillocks, thus again mitigating a possible tedium.

Slight movement in the scene comes from Araquel's delicate rendering of the sky beginning in the upper left as luminous light in the paintings upper left changing into rose behind the barn and then to blue-grey. A sky that portrays but a moment in time does not disturb the pervasive tranquility, rather it forms a grace note that gives life to the overall composition.

Having investigated the components in "Barn in Lindsay", now turn to "Northern Waterfall" on the opposite wall. This painting captures a moment in time and is full of movement, using the time honoured rules of one strong diagonal emphasis, stronger colours etc. Look at it carefully and try to find the subtle ways in which the artist has chosen images that vary these and in so doing given the viewer a seemingly simple landscape that is full of interest.

Spring cleaning tea an afternoon event

SENIOR LEAGUE

Hyland Crest News

Donna Wallace

Monday, there was the usual fitness with Janice. In the afternoon, Pearl, Eleanor and Janice escorted and assisted residents with bingo.

Tuesday morning, Pastor Murray came in on short notice and took the chapel service. This will be his last service at Hyland Crest. He is leaving the Allsaw Pentecostal Church. The residents would like to thank Rev. Murray for his dedication to the home, his music and song, his words of kindness and the compassion he bestowed on the folks. We all wish him the very best in the future. Thank you, Reverend.

Tuesday afternoon, we held crafts. Everyone was doing something different. It all pertained to Mother's Day, May 14. In the later afternoon, a retirement party was held in honour of Joyce Bacon. She is retiring after 25 years' service in laundry. We all wish you a long, healthy, happy retirement, Joyce. Residents council attended. Tuesday evening the Girl Guides visited the home. They did some singing and then had a scavenger hunt in the home. Thank you, girls.

Wednesday afternoon, the Comfort Shoe sale took place in the auditorium. Many residents, employees and volunteers took advantage of the sale. At 2 p.m. Dottie Muirhead and I took eight residents to Zion United Church in Carnarvon. It was their spring cleaning tea. It was an occasion for the folks to put on their finery and go out for an enjoyable afternoon. Two or three of the folks won door prizes. We thank the U.C.W. ladies for starting late, due to our tardiness. The residents were busy buying shoes. In the evening, Pearl and Corinne had cards for the folks.

Thursday, Janice raised heart rates with her morning fitness class. In the afternoon, the Maple Lake U.C.W. held a tea party. It was birthday cake week, in honour of all the April birthdays. Congratulations to this week's birthday people. They are Ken Anderson, Margaret Leboutillier and Margaret Cook. Thanks for the lovely party ladies.

The ladies did line dancing Friday afternoon. The Grandfathers Four entertained for happy hour. They included: Don Hadley on Mandolin, Bill Payne, guitar, Eldon Deacon, guitar and Don Burch of harmonica. We had all kinds of goodies. Bob Muirhead tended bar. The music was great as usual.

Saturday, Velma Sine entertained on piano in the main lounge. Sunday, Estella Burch came in for her usual reading session. Thanks, Estella. In the evening, Rev. Burgess delivered an enlightening sermon.

We extend our sincere sympathy to the families of the late Stuart Harrison and William Kennedy.

Weather must be warming up. I have seen some pesky black flies around. I open they come and go in a hurry so I can get on with my gardening.

A thoroughly happy birthday describes Elva Cooper's 95th. So many relatives and friends came to the centre on April 29 and all with the very best of wishes for a lady well loved and respected. Those of us closest to her were especially grateful for her health and happiness, and all present enjoyed her gracious manner and received dozens of greetings, including the presentation of a plaque by Chris Hodgson on behalf of Victoria-Haliburton riding.

Afternoon reception was followed (after a time for rest) by a family dinner at 6:30 at which Sid Cooper proposed a toast to our guest of honour.

Other immediate family present were Toby West, Al and Earl Cooper, and Shirley Rapson. Flowers graced her table and dozens of cards were brought with greetings. Later on music of fiddles, guitar and mandolin with Betty Cooper at piano was played for dancing.

Waltzes and square dancing brought back happy memories to Elva Cooper. All in all it can be truly said, "that a good time was had by all," on this very special occasion for this very special lady.

Faith Mission has been going on for two weeks in our communities, first at Eagle Lake, then at West Guilford Baptist Church.

Attendance has ranged from 35 to 60. A ladies' pot luck supper was held on Thursday at the centre.

Friday was designated Youth Night, and everything wound up on Sunday with a rally at the centre which also included the monthly Sunday Supper Club.

The Guilford Clothing Exchange and Drop-In happens again on May 22 at the centre. For more specific information, call Sue at 457-1209.

This service rotates throughout the county in communities of Gooderham, Minden, Wilberforce, Cardiff, Harcourt and Lochlin. An ambitious program indeed!

How sad to hear of another death in the Sisson connection in the passing of Lou McGuire, wife of Murray McGuire of Halls Lake area.

At the time of writing, there is the added concern of Murray's hospitalization in a Sudbury hospital.

Will the real rhubarb capital please stand up?

From the RHUBARB PATCH

Eagle Lake News

Ruth Still

The advent of a proposed weekly news column from Eagle Lake has been precipitated by recent events.

On Sunday, April 23, Tom Allen of "Fresh Air" interviewed me regarding the hamlet's title of "The Rhubarb Capital of Ontario". The talk was about the number of pies produced for our festival July 15, 16, the extent of rhubarb grown and the hamlet in general.

The following Saturday, "Fresh Air" interviewed John

Smith, chairperson of the rhubarb committee in Shedden. They too, it seems, claim to be "The Rhubarb Capital of Ontario". Shedden produces 600 pies, grows rhubarb stalks four feet high and through their M.P.P. are about to defend their title.

Chris Hodgson, our local M.P.P., was immediately informed of the situation. The provincial election had been announced the previous day, which suggests many possibilities for this issue.

Suffice it to say at "The Rhubarb Patch", we accept the challenge. A meeting for the whole community at the Eagle Lake Community Church has been scheduled for Wednesday evening, May 10 at 7:30, to elect an enlarged festival committee. Offices in marketing, programming, production and finance need to be filled, a summer schedule agreed upon and supported by the whole community.

At this meeting facts of the above controversy will be aired, discussed and a plan of action drawn up.

At any rate from the letters and telephone calls already received, Eagle Lake has achieved a province-wide profile.

How we handle it will, I hope, be the substance of next week's news column from the Rhubarb Patch.

AUDITORS' REPORT

TO THE MEMBERS OF COUNCIL, INHABITANTS AND RATEPAYERS OF THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF GLAMORGAN

We have audited the consolidated balance sheet of the Corporation of the Township of Glamorgan as at December 31, 1994 and the consolidated statement of operations for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Township's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In our opinion, these consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Township as at December 31, 1994 and the results of its operations for the year then ended in accordance with the accounting principles disclosed in note 1 to the consolidated financial statements.

Suicide prevention seminar topic

On May 27, at Ridgewood Public School, a "Radio Daze" variety show is planned. More later.

A seminar on suicide awareness will be held on Tuesday, June 6, 1995 from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at Ridgewood Public School. This informational seminar will cover the areas of prevention, intervention and postvention of suicide as it relates to family and community.

The need for a greater awareness of how suicidal behaviour may manifest itself has become a concern for many residents in the northern area of Victoria County. This seminar, conducted by Barbara J. Moffatt and Associates of Peterborough, will address this need. It will give key elements toward recognizing and understanding non-fatal and potentially fatal suicidal behaviours.

Everyone is welcome. Admission is free. Any donations to the Committee on Suicide Awareness to assist on-going projects will be appreciated.

For more information, contact Heather Berry at 454-2286 or Jan Moffatt at 454-1272, at home or at work, 454-3382.

While we are just settling into spring, the local schools have the newest classes of kindergarten, for fall term, already registered. About thirty little ones will be starting kindergarten, this fall, at Ridgewood. Since the school is on the outside of town, that means the little ones will become bus passengers, a new experience for many.

Lots of sick folks need a warm hug and a tonic! Wayne Downes is now home from Ross Memorial Hospital, also Garnet Rutter. Maude White is doing find after her hospital stay.

JoAnn Griffith has been sick recovering at home.

Carolyn Strong from the Buller Road at Norland, passed suddenly. Mae Basinger passed away at Collingwood hospital. Sadie Callan passed away in Ross Memorial Hospital and her funeral was held on Monday, May 1.

We have a new baby colt, born April 21, a big attraction to our kids and others. There are some new kittens at the barn also. I wish someone would adopt one or more!

Gord and Mildred Jewell had a scare when Gord had a nasty fall and suffered a very back black eye. After spending the night at the hospital, both are doing well now.

Congratulations to Elva Hannivan, one of our older seniors, who had a birthday on May 12. George Shepherd had a 53rd birthday, and was serenaded by his friends gathered at the Summer Kitchen restaurant on Sunday, April 30.

The monthly dinner, held at noon, the fourth Wednesday of the month, was held at the Somerville Centre at Burnt River on Wednesday, April 26, with a good crowd in attendance.

The Grandfathers Four, a musical group, with violin and guitars and mouth organs, supplied the music. There was dancing, for those who wished to dance, and several of the volunteers took a Case Manor resident onto the dance floor.

There were a number of awards given to volunteers for their faithful service to the Diner's Dinner, for vegetables prepared and cooked, meals served, dishes washed, tables set up, etc. Those who have ten years as a volunteer are: Eleanor Switzer, Audrey Thrasher, Ada Handley, Darlene Smith, Kay Taylor, Reg Hodgson, Bernie Hodgson, Frank Hickey, Erin Handley and Charles Taylor.

Volunteers eligible next year are: Bill St. Thomas and Mildred St. Thomas, December 1990; volunteers started 1991 - Aileen Hodgson, June 19, one year; started 1992 - Bill Demuth, February 1992, Ruth Crossland and Claudette Dealereu; volunteers started in 1992 were: Maurice Watson, Lavern Ayers, Mary Hill, Mona Beaulieu, Joan Robinson and Bonnie Riviat.

Get well wishes to Renee Comeau, of Burnt River, who is in Ross Memorial Hospital, after falling off a roof and breaking his elbow and having a severe shaking up.

The monthly Mariner's meeting was held at the home of Walter and Hilda Curl. The Mariners are the people who put up gospel signs you'll see in several areas. A prayer for the family of the late Enos Brubacher, who passed away on March 28, was said and also for the family of John Wight, who died in a fire south-west of Oakwood. Walter Curl spoke on the Beatitudes and prayed. He said James Lantz from Elmvale will take over in the death of Enos Brubacher. Mr. Lantz is well-known, a salesman for Dominion Automobile Association. Lunch was served by the hostess.

April 24, 1995 was World Day for Laboratory Animals. This day was wet to remind us that many animals are used in research, and many abused. When you purchase products, you can imagine if animals have been used in testing. There is so much abuse, the public has to speak up now.

Junior firemen tops in trash pick-up competition

GOODERHAM

News

Anne Costeloe
447-2400

A Community Street Sale is planned for Saturday, May 20. Local residents are invited to set up "shop" in town for the day. The event is being coordinated by the Glamorgan Recreation Committee. Tables will be available to rent from the recreation committee, with proceeds going to the swim program.

The community clean-up was a great success. The teams of youngsters had lots of fun cleaning up. The Brownies picked up 22 bags of trash, the Guides, 15, and the champions, the Junior Firefighters, picked up 24! Great work!

The Seniors Community Pot Luck and Games Night was well supported. At least 60 people attended and there was plenty of delicious food.

The Community Police Association will be meeting on Monday, May 15 at 7 p.m. Members of the public are welcome to attend.

The Volunteer Firefighters attended a fire at a mobile home on Highway 507, at about 4 p.m., April 29. The home was destroyed by the fire. Fortunately, there were no injuries as no one was home at the time. The cause of the fire is undetermined.

The Gooderham Imperials entered a hockey tournament in Montreal. Team members say they enjoyed a great experience in visiting the City of Montreal, and had fun playing hockey. They played three games before being eliminated from the tournament. They plan to try again next year. Better luck next time!

Now that the weather is improving, the baseball season is getting underway. T-ball and softball for children will start up again in June.

Coordinators, Barb Hunter and Marg Bates are looking for volunteers to help coach the teams. Contact Marg Bates at 447-2708 if you'd like to help coach.

Education Week at Gooderham Elementary School was a great success. The Family Reading Night attracted many interested parents who attended informative talks, while the children were entertained with stories.

Anniversary wishes sent

CARNARVON

News

Ann McKay
489-2924

Happy wedding anniversary wishes to Mildred and Stan Archer who celebrated 58 years of marriage on May 5.

Jack and Roan Barnhart are home from their trip through the southern States.

Mrs. Alice Voiccy spent a week in Newmarket with her daughter, Sharon McKay and family.

The May meeting of the U.C.W. met on Wednesday afternoon in the Bert Allen room.

Ray McKay is home from Princess Margaret's Hospital until May 30.

It is with a deep sense of regret we learn of the death of Lou (Ruth) McGuire of Halls Lake. Ruth is the wife of Murray McGuire who is a patient in the Sudbury hospital. Because of these unfortunate circumstances Ruth's body was cremated. She passed away Wednesday, May 3.

Get well wishes to Ross Harrison. Francis Thomas, Helen Windsor and Bob Fletcher.

Congratulations to Lornetta McGue, the daughter of Jean McGue of Carnarvon, who gave birth to a 7 lb., 4 oz. daughter on April 29 at Barrie Victoria Hospital, a first grandchild for Jean.

Tour of GM auto plant highlight of seniors' trip

WILBERFORCE

News

Flo Elliott
448-2618

The highlight of the Senior's bus trip to Oshawa on April 27 was the tour of the General Motors car plant. It was just amazing to see the new technology at work; the robot arms doing their jobs, looking like something from a science fiction movie.

The flat cars going around the floor all by themselves to get supplies. And it was really something to see an empty car body at one end of the line, and then to see it turn into a beautiful, drivable car at the other end. Everything is so organized, it's no wonder they turn out 10,000 cars a month.

We also had a tour of the Antique Car Museum. It was really nice to see, but what a comparison to today's transportation. We even had time to go to the Oshawa Centre for a while, so everyone was satisfied.

We had a great meal on the way home, and lots of fun and jokes and singing on the bus. Congratulations to the organizer Warren Bowen and his assistant Floyd Tighe for a very enjoyable day.

A correction to last week's column. The nominating committee for the seniors' election on June 13 is Gordon Clark, Gertrude Godfrey and Ernie Hemphill. Sorry about that.

There will be an indoor yard/bake sale on Saturday, May 20 from 10:00 to 2:00 at the Highland Grove Recreation Centre. All donations will be greatly appreciated. Proceeds will go to the Highland Grove Activity Club.

Remember the dabber bingo on Monday evenings at the Lloyd Watson Centre. It's an easy and enjoyable way to help support Minor Hockey.

Congratulations to my sister, Mavis, and her husband Doran, on becoming first-time grandparents of a beautiful baby girl, Amber Ann, weighing in at 9 lb., 8 oz.

Kids spellbound by storyteller

by Anne Costeloe
Gooderham

"Just fifteen minutes a day is all it would take to revolutionize the education system," Laraine Forgrave told parents attending Family Reading Night at Gooderham Elementary School on Tuesday. "Children learn to read by hearing stories and by being read to."

Mrs. Forgrave is a Grade 1 teacher at Victoria Street School, and in addition to her expertise as a teacher she has taken courses on reading development. The most important thing parents can do to improve their children's chances for success at school is to read to them. And just fifteen minutes a day would be enough.

In order to become competent readers, children must master three distinct, interconnected aspects of reading. They must be able to understand the structure of our language, the grammar. They must understand the symbols, the phonics. And they must be able to understand the meaning of what they are reading, reading comprehension. Children learn to understand our language by just being spoken to. The word/letter recognition and the reading comprehension develop through being read to.

motivator, who encourages children to write, through helping them to feel good about themselves, and their work.

There are so many opportunities to practise writing, at home and at school: lists, journals, stories.

And what's the best way where is that fifteen minutes of quiet time to stop and read? Often a parent can't find two minutes to spare, let alone fifteen!

Fortunately, it doesn't really matter what is read or where you read it. Almost anything will do; a shopping list, the comics, the V.C.R. manual, a street sign, the cereal box at the breakfast table, the signs in the supermarket, or best of all, a favourite bedtime story. There can be many opportunities to read to children if only we can learn to see them and take advantage of them.

While the parents learned how children learn to read and write, all the children who attended were entranced by professional storyteller Jim Blake and teacher Jim Hopkins, who regaled them with songs and stories.

Reinforcing the message that reading is fun, each child went home with a new storybook. Happy Reading.

It doesn't matter what you read or where you read it; almost anything will do

The more the better, but just fifteen minutes a day would be enough.

Chris Lynd, a Grade 5 teacher at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, spoke about the reading-writing connection. She described how the two develop together. Those early scribbles are the first steps in the journey towards writing. Gradually these evolve into symbols, then letters, and finally, with lots of practice and encouragement - writing.

Ms. Lynd described the teacher's role as being a to help? Why, it's read, read more, and read some more, (and the younger the child is when you start, the better). It seems so obvious, so simple, but sometimes the obvious and simple is hard to see. If children see their parents reading and writing, they will want to do it too.

But, with the frantic pace of life today, rushing to get kids off to school in the morning, rushing to work, then home, getting dinner, getting kids to after school activities, then home and ready for bed -

If you've wondered where the top real estate agents are, the signs are everywhere.

You can buy or sell a house, but who knows whether you'll be satisfied in the process.

Unless of course you deal with a real estate company that specializes in making their customers satisfied.

And who might that be? RE/MAX.

And how do we know many of our customers are satisfied?

Well, in a recent survey with over ten thousand people, 95% said they were very satisfied with their RE/MAX agent.

Not only were they very satisfied, 92% said they would use their RE/MAX agent again. And 93% would recommend using their RE/MAX agent to friends.

Those are exceptionally high scores indeed. But how do you think we became the number one real estate organization in Canada?

By giving satisfaction.

Call us first.

330 THANK YOU

THE FAMILY OF the late Harry Clark is thankful for the support of relatives, friends and neighbours during Harry's illness and our mourning his passing from us. Visits, phone calls, cards, food, flowers and memorial donations have been much appreciated and will be long remembered. Thanks to the patient and caring staff at the Haliburton Hospital and at St. Joseph's in Peterborough. The Monmouth First Response Team and the Ambulance Service were so helpful. Special thanks to Dr. Hartwick, whose care Harry always valued, and to Doctors Minor, Lan, Moore and Mohindra. To Rev. Christopher Greaves, our gratitude for his reassuring presence and comforting message and service at St. Margaret's; And to Rev. Rob Luxton who assisted. To Winn and Jack, we were grateful for a special family time on Sunday. To our comrades of the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 624, Wilberforce, thank you for honouring Harry with a memorial service Sunday evening. To the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, the people of St. Margaret's and the Monmouth Seniors, our thanks for the reception at the Lloyd Watson Centre. To Harry's good buddy, Gord, and all the people at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, our special appreciation. Marion Clark and family.

330 THANK YOU

ELVA COOPER says thanks from the bottom of her heart to the people who turned out in such numbers to celebrate her April birthday. Your cards, flowers and good wishes will always be treasured.

THE FAMILY OF the late Stuart Harrison would like to express their sincere gratitude to friends and neighbours for their thoughtful expressions of sympathy. The calls, visits, cards, floral arrangements, gifts of food and memorial donations to the Heart and Stroke Foundation and Minden Hospital Fund, were all very much appreciated. Special thanks are extended to the United Church Women, for the lovely lunch and to Gordon Monk and associates for their caring professionalism and support during this time of bereavement. Hilda Harrison and family.

THANK YOU TO MY FAMILY and friends for their prayers, cards, flowers and phone calls while I was a patient in Oshawa General Hospital. Also, a special thank you to Dr. Sachevea and the V.O.N. nurses for their care. Also, a special thanks to my husband, daughters and son. Clara Leveck.

IN APPRECIATION for the many tributes and kind wishes extended to myself and family after my wife, Mabel's, recent passing. We are very thankful that she was able to enjoy a full and happy life right up to her final hours.

Those we hold most dear never truly leave us. They live on in the kindnesses they showed, The comfort they shared, And the love they brought into our lives.

Sinclair Russell, Carnarvon

THANKS to Carrie, Robbyn, Angela, Susie and Shawn for being the best friends anyone could have and supporting me. Thanks also to Cathy and Carl Lodge for offering to 'cover' for me. A great big hug to Trevor for helping me through this. I love you all, Lynda

HEARTFELT THANKS to our families and friends who helped ease our sadness in the loss of our "most special beloved daughter, Joanie". Your many acts of kindness, both in the past and now will never be forgotten, as we know Joanie was very special to you, too. Joanie's last few years were not easy for her, but with the love and kindness of her many friends and family; also, her supervisors, councillors and staff from M.S. Cottage and McGhie Apt.; the doctors, nurses and staff from Special Care Unit, you helped get us all through somehow. So many of you went beyond the call of "duty" that to name and thank you all personally would be impossible. But from the bottom of our hearts "thank you" and to one lady in particular, Lynda Porteous, Joanie's supervisor from McGhie Apts., you were and are an angel. Your love, kindness and support we will cherish and remember forever. To her very special pallbearers, Lynda, Sharon, Donna, JoAnn and Continued... Patricia from McGhie Apts., Joanie's loving brother Myles and brother-in-law Mark, your show of love we'll never forget. Rev. David Lowe, God bless and many thanks for the beautiful services, both here in Minden and the memorial service at Huronia Regional Centre, and, to Heather, for her most touching eulogy (that was Joanie). To the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, you made the task of losing our loved one more bearable. You truly are a remarkable family. Also to Pat Campbell and all "her family", Dawn Brohman, you were always just a phone call away and last, but not least, Sharon Damery (Joanie's councillor), your kindness and love will always be remembered. "Thank you and God bless you all." Betty and Bernard Trumbull and family.

Centennial party for church planned

DORSET

News

Phyllis Briscoe
766-2237

Happy birthday to Alex Gervais, Jasmine Duckoff, Kayla Leslie and Mary Spielberg. Best wishes and happiness to all.

The Dorset Lions Club hosted an A-12 District Lions Cabinet meeting at Lions Camp Dorset on Sunday, May 7.

It is customary for the host club to entertain the guests while the cabinet is in session. The club organized a tour of the village and local businesses, including a special arts and crafts exhibition being held at the Dorset Recreation Centre.

The last Sunday of the month get-together of the Lake of Bays Anglican Parish was held at St. Ambrose, Baysville with Port Cunningham and Dorset participating. There was a good attendance and a delicious lunch was enjoyed after the service.

Just two weeks to the 24th long weekend. Time to get the bathing suits out and pray for some hot weather to elevate the water temperature between now and then.

The A.C.W. held a meeting last week to discuss different aspects of the centennial celebration, this being the 100th year of services in St. Mary Magdalene.

July 22, being the patronal day of St. Mary Magdalene, that day has been chosen for a dinner in the Dorset Community Centre. No Christmas in July this year, but a ham dinner is being planned. The following day, Sunday, there will be a celebration church service. A lovely motor trip is through Algonquin Park and a stop at the beautiful Visitor's Centre is well worth your time. I enjoyed a trip recently with friends, going by way of Bancroft, then up through Whitney where we stopped to enjoy some great food, then through the park where we spied several moose at various intervals. Apparently, at times, the moose are quite numerous along the highway, but we are happy with what we saw.

H.H. Old-fashioned castor oil is great eye cream if you apply it before retiring. Plastic surgeons use it after surgery.
